WinXP Home Edition SP2

in my case, the only thing appears was that attached image file. there's nothing else.

That usually means your AV has messed around with the SVKP.sys (or SKVP.sys? Can never remember which it was), either deleting it or stopping it from loading.

If you use Norton AntiVirus you can try the steps suggested url= here to try and fix the problem.

well, after I slept and woke up, now renguard works fine. I don't know why. anyway thanks for your differential diagnosis.
