Firstly, don't bother replying if you don't read the entire message, otherwise you won't have both sides of the argument. The second reply in this thread contains my release: NoFear.

Okay, I know all of you here will have heard of my name (In good and bad). The good was Reserved Slots, Kill Messages, and my public expansion of my Kill Messages lower down in this thread. First of all, I wish I could turn back the clocks and fix all that has gone wrong. I think it has gone past a stage now that I can fix any trust, and I'm not looking to fix it.

Image yourself (16 years of age) trying cigarettes for the first time in your life, the amount of peer pressure that has been placed upon you. This was a huge factor in this case. Now, you finally accepted the cigarette into your hand, and its light, slowly burning away. You take one small puff of the cigarette and think, "Oh, I'll be fine; the nicotine won't get to me". You hope this is correct, only to find yourself craving for more, more, more! You would do anything to get another cigarette. You have become addicted and think you can get away with it and not get caught by anyone.

Now, I'm sure you would have guessed from the above that I am actually 16 years of age. Yes, this is a lot of responsibility for me, and a load more if I got finalized together in the partnership with Black-Intel/Black hand Studios. People will say that I should never be part of that, and to some degree I have to agree but I myself wanted to help, unfortunately I went the wrong way.

Now, I don't smoke, but I know people who do and I wrote this little story to say how powerful it can be from what I have learnt from them. They wish they could give it up, and they have tried really hard. Now you can apply this same situation to my cheating, first time I did worry about it, but after a time, it became natural. I couldn't help myself.

I'm not looking to bore you to death; I'm giving you an insight into why I cheated. To begin it was kill the cheaters in the game; I would exclusively hunt them down and fire. RenGuard 1.03 is being bypassed and various events for the next RenGuard 1.04 have slowed down the production. Certain rumors fly past my ears that v00d00 completed RenGuard 1.04, but turned sour creating a hack that would be unstoppable (This was believed to have been made available to certain friends). Other people have certainly done this, for example Sir_Kane. I admire what he has created, although know myself that he shouldn't have. He also knows what he has done and will suffer the consequences. I would like you to grant him a second chance, which is what he deserves. I believe in a "three strikes and your out" system.

On my hand, I have done a whole lot more than what you have seen. Behind the scenes I've been causing a huge amount of havoc that fortunately hasn't spread to any bad ears yet, but only time will tell what had happened (More importantly, what will happen in the future). That to me has wasted all my chances, and I don't want anymore.

I'll leave the end there.

Next, I would like to publicly release my latest and last piece of work for the Renegade community, all of which is my own work. I will get a member of Black-Intel to read over the code and they will tell you if they think it is safe to use. This was opened to n00bstories and Black-Intel to begin with, and as I have finished the work I would like to release this to all communities.

I present NoFear, a client modification for Command & Conquer Renegade as an attempt to keep this game from dying as it reaches the end in its life cycle. This modification allows the user to:

- Expanded Kill Messages (Including Weapon/Vehicle and Preset)
- Team Vehicle Delivered Messages
- Console Commands to enable/disable Expanded Kill Messages
- Customization File for above features

Source code is not shipped out, because the nature of this code means that you could make a slight change and see a lot more than you should be allowed to see. The scripts.dll version is 2.9.2.

I hope everyone enjoys this release as my last work on the Renegade engine as I will most likely move onto another game and start from scratch to build up a reputation for myself and my name. If you meet me in any of those games, I would like all Renegade events to be forgotten or neglected.

Without further delay, you can now download my modification. This is also most likely goodbye.

I will download this and try it out. I admire the fact that you got caught cheating and still have didn't go childish and say well now that you've kicked me out of this and that I wont release any fixes and whatnot.

Thanks for the great things you've done to Renegade. See you around. (I hope) first of all your body craves nicotine. i have been addicted to it (not cigorets) and found it pretty easy to get off of it. in fact all you need it willpower, find something to do that will take your mind off of nicotine.

second of all, i will not fogive the fact you cheated. but i also for some reason feel some sympathy. i have considerd getting my own back on cheaters, but i just think to myself "is it worth it?". no is the answer. never the less, what you did for the community was counterd by the fact you did this.

i think everyone should be allowed a second chance. imo, if you do stop cheating i think this should all be forgotten. unless ofcourse it happens again. i belive no one should have a 3rd chance.

im sure i will be called a jackass for posting my opionion. but thats how it goes on this forum.

Although I respect the work that you've done for this community, it is your fault that you cheated. Cheating is very different from smoking as its your choice whether you continue or not, and honestly, you must be hanging around some pretty sad people if they use peer pressure on you to make you cheat on a videogame to make yourself look good at it.

Why should you deserve any more chances than the average joe? I mean, there's people who admitted cheating and said they're sorry and haven't been given any lenience. Admitting to cheating only after you got caught, denying it all until there's proof on the table. You should have enough balls that if someone suspects you of cheating, with or without proof, and you in fact are cheating, that you should admit it regardless, for the sake of the other person. The last thing you should do is flame the other person and lie about it making the other seem like s/he didn't know what he was talking about.

I'd rather have someone who blatantly cheats more than someone who has an advantage that is hard to spot. You can re-ban the ones who blatantly do it quite easily, but the people who lie and will try and sneak through, i really can't trust them to say they won't try to sneak again.

Besides. The douche had a second chance - remember Crimson admitting that she told him to stop? What did he do? Not stop. How many chances does a guy get if he does something for the community? Besides it's of my own opinion I really don't give a shit about server modded shit. O.K you can go ahead and fix bugs like falling through the map, beyond that Renegade was fine as it is.

As for you, you already admitted you don't even care what people think of you after you cheated. You should care, you ruined some of their games, and every person who hasn't cheated has a right to be mad because EVERYONE makes the choice of whether or not to cheat - Just because we were mature enough to choose not to cheat hardly means you can act like you're above it all. I'd feel embarassed if I knew and talked to you and were part of anything you did.

Furthermore, i don't really care how good or bad whatever you made is, the fact that you're a big bag of douchery leads me to not want to have anything to do with something so abnormally doucehbaggy. If other people like it, cool, but we sure as hell didn't need it and it's not like renegade would be dead without you. That pretty much goes for both, because there'd still be dedicated people who would much rather see other priorities come first rather than scripts where you can change your score to make yourself feel like you're anything but the shitty-ass scum player you are.

That was the worst analogy EVER, by the way. You're comparing something like a game, to a certain aspect like cheating and not being able to stop? I'll bet 100$ that you didn't even TRY to stop.

Just fuck off.

They're based on the team of <killer> as the primary color.

Just like normal, you kill someone and the message "<nick1> killed <nick2>" is in the color of your team.

In other words, two GDI guys killed two Nod guys when he took that screen shot.

in real life different people have different amounts of chances, so in ren we might as well take this into account as well as the fact that our community is small. communism is when people are even, and this is a site created by a democratic country, not saying we vote on everything here.

This cannot be regarded as a cheat, the information that you can recieve can be communicated to you in other ways, this just makes it a lot more easier.

Quote:I would like you to grant him a second chance, which is what he deserves

I was talking about him, which is indeed why I said that. But as for you, I don't think you deserve one either. The fact that you lied about cheating(yours and his) and you even knew that he cheated just makes it all the more sadder. What am I talking about?

Quote:Silent_Kane has managed to perform various little tricks server side in the dll he is currently coding. These are found and removed by Crimsons request. This incident more to do with "fluke" then hacking.-you

Not only did you lie about cheating, but you did get a second chance. Every single time you entered a game with or without cheats, you made a choice wether or not to stop cheating, as i'd be 100% sure that you didn't even try to do. So even after every time someone suspected you of cheating, and you were, they just didn't have proof, you still made the decision to cheat. Take that to people who, because they are new - join a game with some obvious cheat and don't know any better, obviously they'll get caught and banned and shown no mercy, when they don't even know how to go about attempting at making it less obvious they cheated in the first place.

Every single time i want to join a game I make the decision of not cheating as does anyone else who knows how easily it is to get. You're not above everyone else, you don't deserve any second chances, even if you already have, so quit acting like you do.

I see this NoFear thing as a HUGE cheat. Why would you have made/use this, let alone release it? It sure doesnt help your story. ALthough, i do really see you go, ALOT will get done slower (including rg1.04). But its funny, most of the people who keep complaining they want rg 1.04 to be released sooner, want you out. This is going against their own logic, and anyway even if you did cheat, i think you saw the error of your ways, and I'd rather have you cheat (but still working on rg 1.04) than have ALOT more cheaters because of the slow down of rg 1.04....

BUT I also think more info should be released about the supposide SK and v00d00 thing

Wall hack is also a great anti cheat! You can see everyone that could do suspect damage! Do you use it though? I hope not.

Yes we know that. It says that on IRC. But if you see 3 apcs just blew up by pistol from an SBH you don't have to alt tab out because its there in your face. Its just like having two monitors. One ingame and on on IRC so you can see the kill messages. How do you work out that this is a cheat. Extended kill messages. Its what you see on IRC. You can't see the other teams chat. So its not a cheat. Its just a easier way to catch cheaters. Thats how I see it. If I had any doubt that this was a cheat do you really think I would openly test it out in public, come to the Renegade forums and say well this part doesn't work. No. I would keep it to myself and abuse it. So to the people who think its a cheat. Could you explain to me in some detail what exactly makes it a cheat.

Most servers disallow people to be in IRC and the game at the same time.

I wouldn't personally view this as a cheat, and I really don't think he made this to give himself an advantage over others either. However I can see how this would upset some people since it could provide an advantage. Even if you did know what character/weapon someone had, there's no way to know exactly where that person is at the same time unless you can already see them on your screen.

I want to add: I can understand server owners / admins using this. It's their server and if it can help them catch cheaters, then I don't see a problem with it. It's their server and they do with it how they like anyway.

Other modern games might have more powerful weapons, therefore it is not a problem to make your weapons do more damage.
For players not using final renegade or whatever, it's their loss if they do not know about it or use it. It's publically available anyway...
Right?

Personally I do not think this will really give you an advantage though. I have had some test builds from Dead6re and have seen little to no use for it really. The only thing that it did for me was make the message window spammed and less readable, which actually is a bad effect as you will more easily miss (team) messages. It might be handy for moderators/server owners to check what exactly happened more easily than having to alt tab to irc and make renegade crash when going back (with a certain version of scripts.dll), however I have not used that information a lot in finding and stopping cheaters.

Many people nowadays (especially popular server owners) will have a dual monitor configuration. So that'll save time and crash at 'alt-tab'bing out.

1. Why do you think the NoFear dll is a cheat? From what I have seen (havn't actually tried it), it provides enhanced kill messages, and team vehicle information...I don't see how any of that is a cheat??
2. v00d00 never left BHS, like the rest of us, he has a life and responsibilities that take up his time. It's true that he was absent for awhile, but it's because he was extremely busy, not because he "left" or "quit".
3. v00d00 has done some work on a mod that would enable server owners to have an option for re-purchasing a building. The idea being that for example, if the entire team donated all of their money, a building could be "turned back on". This would be a server-side mode and certainly not a cheat.

Those people may be unfortunate, but your advantage came shipped with the game straight from EA. You may have a financial and technological advantage, but that doesn't make it your fault that you have a better machine than they do, so you shouldn't be punished for it.

AmunRa wrote on Thu, 18 January 2007 12:31The information provided by this dll gives the user no advantage over anyone else, atleast from what I can see. Its really not that different from looking in irc, even a "public" channel. I see no way that this could be used to give a regular user advantage over anyone else.

Let me present an example scenario:

I doubt regular users (if allowed to do so) will be constantly alt-tabbing between IRC and Renegade (note that Windowed mode only allows someone to see the last few lines of IRC output unless they move the window, which is analogous to alt-tabbing) to see if there are any SBH units left after GDI destroys the HON. Seeing a SBH unit make a kill after the HON is destroyed will allow GDI to know that there still is/are a/some stealth unit(s), whereas they may not have had such knowledge otherwise (e.g. if a Nod player had just purchased the SBH in the Power Plant when the HON died). Now, with this knowledge, GDI will actively try to prevent this/these unit(s) from entering their base, and will be more conservative about base defense than they would have if they had assumed there were probably no remaining SBH units.

I'm sure many other scenarios exist in which there could be an unfair advantage gained from this. However, as I stated before, my greatest concern is the constant accusations that we'll get from ignorant players who 1. don't understand that the weapons in the kill messages refer to those the person is currently holding, rather than what they were killed with, and 2. have the naïveté to believe that anyone who killed them and is not using RenGuard must be cheating, and/or that noone who uses RenGuard could possibly be cheating (which is already an issue, but combine this with #1 and it gets even worse). Unless you plan to have all C4 and beacon detonations (with their corresponding owners) displayed ingame, I predict that if people who are too dumb to understand what this is get their hands on it (through direct download or a future scripts.dll/core patch release), the problems this may create would outweigh the benefits (at least until someone invents an ingame !shun command).

The average person should be able to figure that out without any assistance.

Basic rule:

If they can still use the Hand, SBH roam the land.

Other than that its a quick thing to see an approximate as to who is out there in active combat, how many players there are on the team, and who you have not heard from in a while, be it that they are afk, guarding the base, or waiting for the right time to strike.

Why should they be able to figure that out? Just because someone hasn't died or killed in a while doesn't mean they're sbhs. My point is that if it were me, and i actually wanted to download this, i would use this as obvious assurance if there is an sbh or not. You can guess all you like and you may be right in "assuming" but if you see sbh kills whatever, then you KNOW there is an sbh. Quite different to just assuming there might be.

Anyways, like I said, I would use it to my advantage that way, and that's what could make it unfair. Tamount to cheating, I don't really know - I guess it depends on what you would count as cheating.

edit: oh and just a question, is the ta-Kane or however it's capitalized the same guy as who was in [NE]?

and with this you won't need that supposed smart person. Besides, I don't remember a single time where the HON was down and someone said that there was an sbh when there was one. Like I said, with this you don't need to have someone say there was an sbh that whoever got killed by him. That is an advantage, you can't discount that it is. Now the question is that if it's an advantage does that mean that only everybody should get it or no one, and that's not a question I can certainly answer. To be fair, it would be either no one or everyone, and since not everyone can... that would imply that it can only be fair if no one did.

So you guys are saying that knowing what someones current character is, and what weapon they killed you with, is a cheat? As if 99% of the time you don't outright see them kill you.

* In many servers, the enhanced kill messages not only show in IRC, but are broadcast via host messages...I guess they are forcing "cheats" onto their players?

* I play with dual monitors, and can see IRC while I play...I guess I'm using the dual monitor cheat, since I can see the kill messages? And no, I don't spy on team chat, which is displayed in a separate admin-only channel.

* I often check the IRC kill messages to make sure someone else is not cheating. Like I'm driving my stank and suddenly it pops although nobody is around, I'm like WTF OMG HAX...then I check IRC and see that it was timed c4 that I obviously didn't see get tossed on me

* As mentioned, ALWAYS assume that SBH are about, even if the hand is destroyed, as that is the best time for SBH to be sneaky and own careless players. Seeing that an SBH killed you in a kill message shouldn't be considered a cheat, as you should always assume they are about.

* I've often been sniped out of the blue and the killer will say in F2 chat "lol sbh sniper ownz u"...I guess he forced me to use the "know what killed you cheat"?

Seriously...you guys need to relax, lol.

I said it was an advantage, not a cheat.

Some people disallow clear scope from their servers, for the reason that it gives people an advantage (if they can't notice people as easily). some people may determine it cheating based on their own definition of cheating. Whether or not mild or not mild, it is an advantage. For example, some people might consider bright skins "cheating" because you can identify people a lot easier than a random person would who doesn't know how to download them if s/he wants to.

I think there was only one person who said it was cheating though. I would think it's up to the server admin to allow or disallow. It's a little unfair for the guy with the lone sbh to kill a guy if the other team has this. Of course, the person who got killed might tell the team anyways, with or without, but now the person with the sbh doesn't have a choice.

I would agree there, but knowing if a team has NO sbhs is an advantage that I would put to use. Instead of repairing in the tiberium where I would normally repair if i really needed to, I could instead repair under cover, or just out in the open. The same could be said about knowing if there are any techs left.

Ok let me make my point. Hand gets destroyed. With this .dll you'll know if a SBH has died recently. Whos to say whether there isn't another 10 sbhs laying around? Thats just like saying to your team. I just saw an SBH die, its ok to get out of your tanks now. This program doesn't tell you whether theres any left. It just simply says who was killed with what. What is the damn problem.

My point was an sbh killing someone else, thus the sbh lives. And the only person who knows this is the person who he killed (which is probably someone who isn't smart enough to tell the team, or doesn't care enough) and any person who uses this script or whatever you want to call it. I did not say that if one sbh dies that means all of them are dead.

Instead of repairing in the tiberium where I would normally repair if i really needed to, I could instead repair under cover, or just out in the open. The same could be said about knowing if there are any techs left.

Theres no way to tell that there are no SBH's...even if the hand has been gone for 15 mins, there is probably still a few lurking around. I know I love keeping my sbh alive as long as possible when the hand is lost

When this was in development i strongly suggested dead6re to also make a server side dll which would toggle this thing on or off. Meaning the client dll checks with the serevr dll if you can use it on this server or not. He choose to ignore this or simply didn't know how to do it, so be it.

So you guys are saying that knowing what someones current character is, and what weapon they killed you with, is a cheat? As if 99% of the time you don't outright see them kill you. This isn't the point! You choose to ignore the whole question. It's the fact you now also have all info on who was killed by whom for the complete game and not only for yourself. Big difference.

* In many servers, the enhanced kill messages not only show in IRC, but are broadcast via host messages...I guess they are forcing "cheats" onto their players?

What's so hard to understand in the explanation of sniper de7. Broadcast message = server side = all know it = all have the same info = no advantage for one compared to another.

* I play with dual monitors, and can see IRC while I play...I guess I'm using the dual monitor cheat, since I can see the kill messages? And no, I don't spy on team chat, which is displayed in a separate admin-only channel.

Yes, you have an unfair advantage towards others. But as you are a server owner/admin, you can do whatever you want anyway, as stated before. TK2 has a passworded IRC and has strict, though hard to control, guidelines not to look in irc while playing for this reason.

* I often check the IRC kill messages to make sure someone else is not cheating. Like I'm driving my stank and suddenly it pops although nobody is around, I'm like WTF OMG HAX...then I check IRC and see that it was timed c4 that I obviously didn't see get tossed on me. Most of the time it won't even show up as timed c4 as ssaow cannot actually guess that it was timed if the player has changed weapons since. As I said, I guess this is your privilege as server owner/administrator.

* As mentioned, ALWAYS assume that SBH are about, even if the hand is destroyed, as that is the best time for SBH to be sneaky and own careless players. Seeing that an SBH killed you in a kill message shouldn't be considered a cheat, as you should always assume they are about. Maybe in a 20v20 game but not in a 5v5 game. And there's a difference between assuming and knowing which will influence your gameplay. If you assume the cops could be around the corner then you might still drink a couple of glasses whereas if you know it, you will not drink any at all.

* I've often been sniped out of the blue and the killer will say in F2 chat "lol sbh sniper ownz u"...I guess he forced me to use the "know what killed you cheat"? All have the same info, you don't have an advantage.

Seriously...you guys need to relax, lol.

An attentive player on GDI would mentally keep track of who they've seen/killed and whether they have an advanced unit (and therefore which one) or a free unit. If they don't see a certain player, or a lack of change in that player's score for an extended amount of time, they can assume that the person is either AFK or deliberately staying out of contact with everyone because they definitely have an advanced unit. Until everyone who was in the server before the HON died is accounted for, that attentive GDI player would stay alert for advanced units, especially SBH, and if he/she is concerned enough, he/she will inform the team accordingly when relevant and/or asked for.

I decided not to implement a server side option because anything this DLL provides as information can be provided by any player. If someone is killed by an SBH when the HON is dead, they can tell you there is an SBH alive. It provides an advantage, I agree, but this advantage can be gained in other ways if you have a good team to work with.

SSAOW might not show that yet, but DragonServ currently does show the owners of Timed/Remote C4 (in the moderator channels), what type exploded or was disarmed (and if the latter, by whom), and whether it was attached to anything. It's certainly possible, and not unrealistic to think Whitedragon may include this feature in the next SSAOW release.

Exactly. Not only this but something like this i think would kill the game somemore. Its good to see ren still kicking, but heavy modding like this, (i think) is way too much. If i kill someone, its tells everyone else exactly what vechile im in, what char etc. Same thing as wall hack? I think so.

I know damn well what gives people advantages, and if yellow SpongeBob C4 skins are not considered cheating, NoFear certainly is not cheating.

Also, just because I've stopped playing the game doesn't mean I stopped due to my lack of understanding of the game. It doesn't take a genius to figure these things out. It just takes simple logic and reasoning, but you would know nothing about them, apparently.

Okay, so by that logic most sports columnists have NO fundamental understanding of the sport they're covering? What about coaches that have never actually played the sport they're coaching?

This isn't a cheat, but it gives players an advantage over people without it. That is the reason I think it should be a server side modification, sure it doesn't make a huge difference but if I choose to load up bright sniper skins, c4, colourful stealth, clear scope this and any other non-cheat then the advantage starts to stack up.

It's all irrelevant as the cat is out of the bag and it isn't going back in - perhaps something like this should be included in RG 1.04 to help level the playing field (especially as it can be turned off if desired)

I fail to see how what dead released as a cheat. I see no advantage to be gained from that extra information. Troop, please go into more detail about the sk/v00d00 thing. I would love to hear this tall tail/lie. Big buldings h4x rules! Dead has nothing to do with BHS and was a member of BI. Sk does have something to do with BHS. Crimson/myself knew about sk. Crimson/myself did not know about dead. Dead is a fucking moron. Sk and dead are seperate issues. Both have been delt with and are in the past. I think that covers everything.

So, am I cheating?

I know when a beacon was planted, and by whom.. I know every death from both sides, and what their characters were, I know every single time someone purchases a vehicle too..

Yes that I will say IS cheating. If you want to read IRC like many of us do. Either read the public channel. Or turn off team messages and vehicles purchases. Because only the admins/mods can see that which would give a HUGE dis-advantage on other players. Atleast with this DLL you can download it publically and EVERYONE can see the same info.

Brightly colored c4 skins are the biggest advantage. This is coming from someone who dies from C4 blasts all the time, and who always tries to kill people with timed c4. I get owned all the time by C4 on the ceiling etc where its so hard to see, and this is by design...how it's supposed to be. Well, you suck.

I don't know what's more sad. That it took you all day to come up with that reply, or that you obviously don't have an alternate point of view on the matter so just replied to show everyone that you agree with me.

You're reading a lot into that...lemme clear things up for you: Anybody that has played the game as long as we have, should seriously be able to spot C4 regardless of their color. After walking through like 3455345345435 PPs, I can't believe a shape that doesn't belong there will go unnoticed...but then again I'm talking to a guy who looks like a mole and at first couldn't understand why Stank sounds give an unfair advantage.

Obviously "anyone" can see a timed c4 laying on the floor, and usually even on a wall. I'm talking about timed c4 that is "cleverly" placed. Places like on the ceiling, on the edges of doorways, on the harvester, etc. People using spongebob and neon c4 mods see those 100% of the time.

I will refrain from responding to your personal insult/observation of my appearance, since you're one of those people who use personal attacks in an attempt to give their argument false weight I guess you can't help it.

I agree that stank sound mods are a cheat as well.

You'll always see a C4 sticking out inside a building, because you should have like every edge of the structure memorized...I can't remember the last time I got blown up from a C4 that I overlooked. Bright C4 may give a slight advantage (if C4s kinda stick inside a vehicle and those are hard to disarm anyway), but to say that they're worse than glowing Snipers, glowing Stanks and the Stank sounds makes you sound like someone without a clue.

BTW: You said that Stank sounds give no advantage when Spooky first brought it up.

Why didn't you guys note the public about SK cheating off-hand? You think maybe if people actually knew he cheated before, that they wouldn't be afraid of accusing him? I love the people asking for them to have "second chance" when they've already had one. I think it was really dumb to not tell the public outright that he wasn't cheating. I mean, of course he isn't going to cheat if it's out in the public, the reason he could just cheat again was the fact that he didn't have the multitude of people that would have been watching him. And yes, I would say I would rather have a cheater who uses final ren once and gets banned than someone who cheats in every single game he plays in changing the outcome of it. Not that it matters to some people, apparently. Besides, I remember captain faggo getting banned from n00bstories before and then he removed himself from the banlist. I sincerely doubt that she didn't know of him cheating before he got his "warning" I mean, must have a pretty blind eye to not question whether the cheat accusations would have been warranted.

Honestly.

UNRULES can go fuck themselves.

I got banned for saying "lol wow tthom ure a n00b" cause it was 2v1

me vs tthom and boner

I was owning them, then they decided to be noobs and ban me! I have screen shots (2 of my teammates were fooling around and UN had a new player called newplayer..)

I was owning them..

First I was rgforced (I thought I had it on.. then again, rg disconnects me allot)

Then I was kickbanned. Wow, wtf?

Screenshots are attached.

Home Alone in .wmv format? Yikes, That's some suck-ass pirating. (Unless it isn't that movie, then my bad.)

I remember playing there server, Some guy had a fast repair hack, SBH revielent(That how you spell it?) and repair gun kills, He killed me with a repair gun, seen me as a sbh from a few meters away, and disarmed my nuke in 0.01 secs. Lol.

I said this guy was hacking and explained why he was hacking. I got called a noob and every player said "it's a glitch" ROFL.

You misunderstood. I said that the bright C4 was more of an advantage than nofears display of the char/weapon that killed you (you know, the actual topic of this thread).

Yes I did initially believe that stank sounds were no advantage, until I actually tried it and discovered how well the sound travels. Expect RenGuard 1.04 to block modified stank idle sounds...actually I could probably implement it right now.

I thought it was obvious that by "biggest" I meant out of the things that were being discussed. I believe that bright colored C4 is the biggest advantage amongst the client-side mods (that are not considered all out cheats) that can be done.

FFS why are we even batting this back and forth? Split hairs much?

Glad to see you agree

You're pretty horrible at Renegade yourself. Please stfu, because how good someone is at Renegade has nothing to do with how smart or how logical you are, or even your personality.

I disagree, if someone cant be good at playing a simple game, then there is something wrong with them.

An question about this file, do you have to use the bhs.dll and scripts.dll thats sin the file or can you use the updated files as they are released by BHS`?

I agree this is useful for mods and admins on servers as am always checking on irc to what kills me or other players when "funny odd kills" happen.

Maybe it's my sound card... but I can hear stanks just fine with the default sound.. It is quite rare that I'm distracted enough to be run over by one.. I can always hear them long before they come close to me.

In fact, when I'm sniping on City Flying, I can always hear a stank rush coming through to the weaps.. sounds like a swarm of bees near by..
