Hey, Do you use a router? I'm taking a guess here, go to www.portforward.com and port forward..

If you don't use a router, Try reinstalling Renegade and it should work.

Was you able to download the patch by any chance?

hey thanks for trying to help, but im not really sure what a router is, but my guess is i dont have one. i have wireless internet which i get from a min computer connected to the cable. my guess was it was my mcafee anti virus so i disabled it, and when connecting to the internet the mouse moved a lot faster and stuff but after time it still froze. i can play every other game online, and i can play single player renegade so i guess it has something to do with anti virus or something i dont know. but no it doesnt give me the option to download any patches. if you have any other ideas for me id appreciate it, thanks, or if anyone else reading this please help me i wanna play

Seems like a firewall problem to me. Did you check if windows firewall is on? If so, try putting it off.

Seems like the traffic to connect is getting blocked. This often creates a 'crash like'-situation. You should launch the game in windowed mode (run wwconfig.exe and select windowed mode) so u can force it to close when it 'crashes'. This will also allow you to see possible firewall block messages.

That's what I thought, but then I read through again and read this:

mikec12321 wrote on Sat, 05 May 2007 17:14i also added renegade to my internet security allow list incase that was the problem.
