i need a bit of help

ive googled but to no avail.

It is one in the format of a web address with ?email=myemail on the end i have AVG trying to rid it, but some reason i have doubts itll work.

Any suggestions?

An online virus scanner would seem the first option to try.

Apparently not as retarded as you.

You see, i got banned from the help sections for remarks like that, which is why i have posted in this section.

Also, if you havnt a suggestion then please STFU and GTFO! thank you.

LMFAO!

2 of my contacts sent me a link to it.

I actually have a copy of this virus, I didn't start it tho, I want to make sure I know what it does.

Is this what it looks like?

If so I could be able to help you, I'm just waiting on a friend to tell me how to stop it. (if I ever start it)

That's a really really old virus... (I'm surprised it's still out there) - there has to be something on Google about it.

Trooprm02, don't derail his thread... have you learned nothing from the Hot Issues thread?

i have followed a few but it requires a program called 'hijackthis', which the virus i have shutsdown shortly after opening it.

the annoying thing is, after i had clicked it the virus sent me this:

(22:18) Andy: i dunno
(22:18) Virus: its a virus
(22:18) Andy: lol?
(22:19) Andy: seriously?
(22:19) Virus: yup
(22:20) Andy: what type of virus?
(22:21) Andy: ???
Virus has gone offline

i had a convo after it with my mate that owns that account hijackthis is the best tool for stopping viruses manually imo, Pretty smart to shut down hijackthis.

Well, you're the one that's being retarded here. If you got one virus which hadnt directly been blocked by some anti virus product, then it could have installed more virrusses/trojans which you haven't noticed. Thus to be save, backup important files (which you should have done before), and then format it and reinstall windows.

First, try using Security Task Manager to determine which program(s) are resident, then start in Safe Mode, try and terminate those processes and run HijackThis.

I do not reply to any of your retarded comments to other players but on this occasion YOU SIR ARE THE RETARDED ONE.

Offer advice to the poor guy or STFU and GTFO. Idiot.

Try the Sophos website (google it) and download any anti-virus that it may suggest. Re-start the PC in safe-mode and follow the istructions that you will be given. It worked on my Wifes PC like a dream.

I think this MAY work
1: Restart pc
2: Go 2 safe mode (if u don't know how for XP right after BIOS press F8 then select safe mode)
3: Log in as Admin
4: Do system restore/delete the virus (You can delete the virus since it most likely wouldn't be running as in safe mode, Windows disables ALL non essential programs)

Deleting 1 of the virus infected files doesn't garantuee it's gone, so better run a virus scanner

The trial version of Nod32, ran in windows safe mode, should get rid of this.

Create two partitions and install the os to each (one per partition).

Your BIOS should automatically detect the boot files to these operating systems and list them after POST. Just select and it will autorun it, and display the other partition as another drive.

If not, update your BIOS or get a new motherboard.

Not entirely sure but i think Parallels runs under Linux.

It emulates the windows operating system, using a virtual machine. Quite a resource hog but what would you expect running two operating systems at once.

The latest version supports 3D applications and games, however source doesn't run well according to posts.
