Ok so lets post some good deals we got recently at a garage/yard/whatever sale!

I got a bendy neck desk lap with a light bulb for ¢.50!

Then my mom who was looking for a cheep deck umbrella found this one brand new still in the box never been opened umbrella for $20.00 the box's price tag said $99.99 on it!

Anyone else get a good deal?

The last time I went to a car boot sale I bought an alarm clock.

And it didn't work.

That was six years ago.

WTF is a car boot sale?

PS:Always ask to test electronics before you buy them.

I don't shop at garage sales, or Goodwill, or any other place like that... but I love to donate to them and get a nice fat tax writeoff.

OMG! Viking man...a car boot is a car trunk! Car boot sales are popular in the UK (and in plenty of places)...they are like the garage sales in America.

Except in a car boot sale, the seller fills up his car with stuff and drives it to a place where other car booters come to.

Then they set up shop and WALA! It's a really neat idea.

We have sales like that here in Perth. Although instead of being car boot sales, people come in and set up stalls. People who are selling stuff and people who are buying stuff both pay fees to the organizer which goes to the charity group that its benefiting.

About 5 or 6 years ago I bought an original game boy at such a "flee market". God did I play a lot of tetris over the little cable with my girlfriend .

Unfortunately in the UK car boot sales are not so much about raising money for charity (although Church ones still are), they are more about a place to fence off stolen goods or illegal cigarettes, pirate porno DVD'S etc etc.

And the honest people there can only really sell second hand clothes, but the only people who buy that shit are the Afgans and immigrants from Eastern block tinpot countries. They get a whole new wardrobe for like 3 pounds.

Most of the Black people who buy that stuff then send it back to Africa where the cousin/uncle/dad has a shop or stall, or some donkey whatever, and then they sell it to all the little village peasants. And because it is only gypies, tramps, thieves and immigrants who now go to these things you can't sell anything with a value higher then one pound, which is why people just sell there second hand clothes for junk prices, furthering the problem...

Some places are more regulated, but not many.

Lat thing I purchased was some star wars figures when I was eight/nine years old.

Where I live, people come over the border between Mexico and the U.S. The Mexicans come over buy stuff from garage sales, fill their van to the brim with good, drive back across the border, and sell it over there to make a profit.

A few years back I got C&C DOS and Covert Operations packed in their original oversized boxes with the instruction manuals in mint condition for 50p each. Helluva bargain but it is a shame that I haven't been able to use them on my current system

My family got two awesome deals recently.

I got an 8.5" 10 bolt posi rear axel out of a 1975 Monte Carlo. It will be going into my 1974 Nova SS. For those of you who aren't into car's posi makes both your back tires spin instead of just one. I've got 12" wide back tires so it will look a lot better when I spin them both. One tire used to cover a parking lot in smoke taking only 20 seconds(thick enough so you couldn't see 10 feet). 2 12" wide tires spinning is going to be a hell of a lot better.

My brother just picked up 90 GOOD CD's for $75 bucks to. All recent songs and everything. Full cases in awesome shape with no damage to any CD's. The guy was selling them for a buck each and my brother just handed him $75 and said he'd take them all. The guy ended up throwing in more since my brother wanted them all. We figure he got closer to 100 recent CD's for $75.00 CDN. We picked out 3 alone that were worth $30.00 each and my brother was going to buy right away.

my brother and I are always out after bargains.

I only sell my crap to people at yard (don't have a garage) sales, I usually don't buy stuff from them.
