You put a ; in front of HealthColorCount.

You also need to specify HealthColor4 and have the value be 101 or else the health counter will be black until it goes below 70. You will then have to change HealthColorCount to 4 in order to add the new color.

modified hud.ini does NOT work with .pkg maps because of how the loading of hud.ini works (specifically the fact that large bits of the code assume that there is only ever one hud.ini and that it never changes at runtime)

Why on earth are you wanting to recompile scripts.dll to use a custom hud.ini file?

You just put the hud.ini into your data (? or maybe just renegade folder, but probably data) folder, and load renegade, no need to go around recompiling things

No, Mad_Kitten is right, in the code for drawing the health and armor with hud.ini there is no checking of whether you are in a vehicle or not.

You should be able to set it up to look at different hud.ini files (IE hud1.ini, hud2.ini, jhud2423455.ini) so you could set it so different infantry had different huds.
