I saw this screwdriver key thing when I was on newegg looking at the Cooler Master Cosmos case. I was like, "O SHI- FUCKING WANT!!" I have typed over 50 different variants of the word "screwdriver key" and "key shaped screwdriver" and all kinds of shit into Google and all I could find was this lame thing HERE. That is not what I am looking for, too much and looks like it would break in seconds.

Here is a picture of it next to some screws in a bag.

So that is the item I am looking for, yes I e-mailed and asked Cooler Master and they never responded.

If you can help me find this EXACT item I will not post for 2 weeks! Otherwise I will post and it will be really annoying.

They are a gimmick made only by cooler master and are not for individual resale. The only way you are going to get a pair is to buy the case/other cool master case or if for some odd reason someone put it on eBay.

EDIT: Just get something like this:

<http://www.amazon.com/FULLER-135-0916-16-Piece-Precision-Screwdriver/dp/B000BDDG8Y>

My set has made all the difference in the world, different brand though.

I have plenty of screwdrivers in my toolbox but none of them go on my keyring!

Put a set in your car and you will have them wherever you go without the bulky keyring problem.

The Utilikey is awesome. Why would you want separate screwdrivers when you can have an all-in-one tool? I have both the Utilikey and the T7 Multi-Tool On my keychain. They have both saved me a lot of hassle on many occasions.

P.S. I don't have an issue with having a "bulky" keychain since my car has Intellikey, which means I don't have an ignition key, so my keyring is always in my pocket

I dislike things that are "all in one" because one small part always breaks and it ruins the entire object.

Don't buy value brand crap. Buy craftsman, lifetime warranty on most everything.

I'll speak for the Utilikey; I have one on my keychain also. It's got both the standard and phillips screwdrivers on it, but the blade is by far the most handy- I've used it for opening packages, letters, prying off staples, etc. It just pops right off the ring when you open it, too- it's too much of a pain in the ass to mess with splitrings or deal with the awkwardness of having your whole keychain attached to the tool while you're using it.

I'll have to look into one of those little multi-tools, too... I'm a big fan of useful, portable things like that.

I've got a multi-tool. I'd have it on me 24-7 if it wasn't for my college's "offensive weapons" policy.

I love it. I've found it's screw-driver fits every type of screw used in the PC cases I own (at least) making it quote handy.

I found it:

It was there in the bag the whole time, I can't believe you didn't see it.

That line is pointing to a stand off not a screw.

Try a cheap dollar store, their tool section has weird tools you cant find at other places, if not try lowes or home depot, i'm sure a hardware store would carry them for 50 cents to 1-2 dollars.

The multitool also disengages from your keyring when you open it. The big main screwdrivers on it are very beefy, and the pliers are very sturdy as well. I've used it for everything from removing screws to cutting wire to using the pliers to unscrew a cross threaded bolt...all while my coworker was gone to find a screwdriver

Its pretty sharp. The first part of the blade is serrated saw-like, and the last half is knife-like.

BAH I SAY! BAH!

I want key shaped screwdrivers NOT a stupid multi-tool! Those ALWAYS break!

Also if it comes off the key chain like that I would LOSE IT! I had a little flash light in my pocket and somehow the fucking spring in it vanished one day! I was like WTF now it has the spring from a pen in it!

Well I do not want that anyway I would rather have 2 separate things then I could do 2 at the same time.

Yes I often see many professionals working on a phillips based device in the right hand and a flat head based device in the other.

Two of what at the same time? I've heard of ambidextrous but that is the most ridiculous (serious) statement I've ever read.

There is no reasoning to your statement at all. Just that line makes me madder than a one legged man in an ass kicking contest. Jesus christ...."2 separate things then I could do 2 at the same time." What the hell! I don't know about you but usually when I'm taking apart a Wii or taking anything apart at all, one hand it usually holding the device...but no! Idjit has to have two separate screwdrivers so he can work out some sort of weird system in which he can tighten and untighten screws on two different devices.

Well ghee golly Marchall Dillan!

I want to be limited to a #3 screwdriver my whole life! I wont buy the tried and true multitool that might actually have a bit that will fit my common electronics.

Hellz to the Know. (That means to hell with knowledge)

God. "2 separate things then I could do 2 at the same time." What the hell?

Damn it all, just refer to message #287915.

As I said the multi-tool is sturdy as hell. There's no way in hell it's going to break, I'm pretty sure I could pry open someones car door with it if I had to.

I've seen those little key screw-drivers before. But I always see them in some weird place, or they're one of those bins at a large store that'll only have them once.

Maybe check out a key-cutter's shop. They usually hang around in malls. As mentioned above, a dollar store might be a good place to look too.

OH BITCHES!

Quote:Dear customer:

The phillip head and the flathead screwdriver on a key ring. It is about 1in and I wouldn't recommend you to use it to build any system. But if you really want it I will be happy to send it out for you.

HA HA! I get one in your faces! Just got to wait till they get a new shipment of spare parts in a bit! I will take a picture when I get it and rub it in your faces!

This is true I got this cool little tool to assemble my case. I would give it to you but, I always save my tools for future use.
