And pin the mass gang rapes on the wrong organization.
Apparently private military firms such as Halliburton, which has a spotty human rights record dating from the 90's, are responsible, since they can't be tried in Iraqi courts for their crimes.

No! You're wrong! I read on a very reliable website that the REAL culprit is Richard Nixon! He does this because he has an internet hate machine powered by the tears of abused marines and Iraqi women!

Please stop posting trash.

Again your talking rubbish, nobody ordered that man to commit rape (from the story in your mass rapes order by the American Army topic), he chose to do it himself and therefore he and he alone is responsible for it. Get that into your thick skull, there ARE NOT groups of men on every street corner plotting to mass rape women, just sad individuals acting on their own accord.

Just because you read it on the internet does not make it true.

This is something that I posted in another thread:

R315r4z0r wrote on Sun, 13 January 2008 04:28I really awt to slap you for that comment. My Uncle, being so low knowledge with using a computer, made me go with him step-by-step into getting him hired for a job out there, which he is now there today. I had to type up resumes and send emails.

He is now a work foreman running mid-night convoys from one town to the next.

He isn't a marine, he isn't fighting, he is helping to rebuild, but that doesn't mean the Iraqis won't try and kill him. Just a few months ago one of the vehicles in his convoy was hit by a roadside bomb.

And not only that, but he went there back in I believe 05. He has visited back home one time so far, and has refused to come back home ever since.

The company that I was helping him write a resume for was Haliburton, and he is currently working for them.

I know that really doesn't have much to do with the thread, I just thought I'd mention it.

Can we please stop going on about rape needlessly, it isn't pleasant.

Carrier is right, I think we're raping a dead corpse here.

(Sorry, just had to throw that in).

It really depends how you use it.....darn!

I want to debate about this but I don't want to steal the topic; I will just start a new one.

EDIT: Okay, here is the offical tread;
