there's this box called category, which one do I choose and which sub-category do I choose.

By the way, what about this "APOC" dude (APOC@ea.com), do I email to him?

Also, I don't think they accept every mod to be a standalone. They'll most likley give standalone permission to those who really puts time into their mods, got a good website and keeps it updated.

This is for that copy-pasta RenegadePlus right?

Just googled renegade plus and it seems like people bag on this guy a lot o.O. I've never really heard of it but the "idea" sounds similar to my mod.

However, everything I've used made by others was released to public for use or I've talked to the person directly to get permission to use it. Is this the same case for him, or did he just go and use stuff as he pleased?

I have also thought about making my mod stand alone, but I don't think I'll bother.

Yes, he stole assets from other mods.

Ah yea, ok then. Stealing shit from other mods without permission is gay=P. I don't like people not providing credit or taking it for something they did not create, or not getting permission. I've had people try to take credit for my mod a few times, and one guy posted on these forums saying my mod was his awhile back.
