I did not know it already existed, but oh well.

How is it an advantage? They are just bullet holes.

Well, because they're bright yellow smileys, it means people will notice them easier. This will provoke them to smell and touch the bullet holes, and determine how long ago and from which direction the bullets were fired, thus revealing the relative location of the shooter. It also could cause increased happiness on the battlefield. shudders

(Epic sarcasm.)

These bullet holes make it easier to spot that someone is shooting you and from where they are shooting you. Just like the paintball bullet holes, actually.

Even through there is other smiley face bullet hole skins, I welcome more Renegade skins, more the better infact, it all helps to keep this game alive and improves your skill in graphics.

So keep working on more skins m8, I will add this to Game-Maps.NET soon.

On the scale of advantage skin skins, I don't mind this really.

Yeah... I wouldn't really classify this much of an advantage skin really.

I know it is a year too late to respond to this fraud but after my investigation of this guy's supposed smiley creation.....he just took my smileys and blurred them and changed the color a little bit.

Goztow wrote on Wed, 02 July 2008 09:36 These bullet holes make it easier to spot that someone is shooting you and from where they are shooting you. Just like the paintbal bullet holes, actually. I think the ground hit emitters already made them plenty noticeable as is. Plus when you take damage you not only make a frickin annoying sound, but it points which direction the bullet came from, but if thats not enough the tracers aren't a dead give away either.
