i got 2 question about that
is there a date when the testing will start?
but more important: who will be allowed to test it out?
will u release the beta public, or will only a few selected people get that beta?

Learn the general release rule of fan-made projects: "When it's ready."

Angers me how people still do not understand this simple concept.

IIRC, I read that beta will be public, but not mandatory until the beta phase is complete. However the TT group has not released a date for the project beta phase.

I hope it takes a little shorter than that. But yes, just wait until it's done.

Specific details about the beta testing phase are still being discussed internally, I can not say anything about it at this point. We want to have it tested well though, so it's definitely going to be available to everyone at some point. It's not certain whether we will first have a private beta test or anything like that though.
