The proper way to do this is to learn html coding. There's loads of good tutorials for beginners, search google for it.

Very simple example:

1. open notepad
2. save file as index.htm
3. enter this code

```
<html>
<head>
<title>This is my website's title</title>
<body background="yourbackgroundimage.jpg">
</head>

```

Type text in here and use these to make it bold or these for italic or even these for underlined. A "BR" equals "enter":

New alinea here ;). Font tags allow you to change many things, like for example the color

</body>

</html>

4. save file and double click it.

I hope this helps.

You'd need a server-sided script to do that, Vendetta. Maybe something like this?

http://www.hotscripts.com/PHP/Scripts\_and\_Programs/File\_Manipulation/File\_Management/index.html cheesesoda get a clue before you start flaming.

Perhaps you can read over my post and tell me where his second post changes anything about my post. I'm curious as to how it changes anything.

Perhaps the fact that "server sided file manager" or "php file manager" wouldn't be the first thing someone would look for if they don't even know what they want.

He knows it's an issue regarding his FTPd. It doesn't take a genius to search for "<FTPD software> customization", or even any general troubleshooting search queries for the FTPd.

If it's possible to customize the page, it'll be somewhere in the code, anyway. I know next to nothing in programming, but I always look through the files to see if I can find what I'm looking to change.

Maybe I'm being quick to assume because so many people are lazy to search, but I'm willing to bet that he didn't spend any extensive amount of time going through files or searches to find the answer he was looking for. I don't doubt that he tried, but I don't think it was a reasonable amount of time spent.

He doesn't want an FTP daemon, he wants a script to mimic one on the HTTP protocol. Like i said, you need a very specific search to find the right answer.

Besides, there's nothing wrong with asking questions. I haven't seen him asking tons of diferent questions before, he's not spamming the board with requests. One request isn't something to get worked up over.
