First off, I have a question. The green dot on the side of the tiberium rifle uses something other than just the file I use to skin (f_gm_tibr), how do you access this file and change the color of that little annoying green dot?

Secondly, here is the tiberium rifle skin I made, though if I am told how to get to that green dot's file, this is not the final version (even though the change would be very slight). Here it is:

No, this is ANOTHER skin I made just because you said that.

No, THIS is the Lava Rifle! Sorry but I couldn't get a screenshot of it, because I was in a rush. I basically used a feature on Paint.net to make it look burnt or on fire. Trust me, it is awesome!

Toggle Spoiler

Also I recommend putting your skins in .rar or .zip instead of uploading the raw file.

It seems you and Altzan do. Thx for the help. By the way, all the emitter files I found were W3D. How do I get to editing them then?

you extract them, u select the emitter in W3d viewer, u hit enter and change the settings, then after you finish editing hit File>Export>Emitter , and replace the current emitter
