Renegade HUD

By andr3w282

A collection of HUD features which were released compiled into one

Features:

This HUD release is compatible with renguard.

This HUD is resolution independent

This HUD displays the current map instead of the radar, displays health, shield and ammo bars.
Mine count for clients team is also displayed

Faded notifications are displayed when ammo or health has changed

THIS RELEASE REQUIRES SCRIPTS 3.4.4 AND THE MODIFIED SHADERS.DLL FILE

BOTH FILES ARE INCLUDED IN THE RELEASE

Installation:

TWO versions of HUD.ini are available in this release.

The original HUD configuration released by DeathLink6.0

A modified version of the HUD by andr3w282

!!!IMPORTANT!!

YOU MUST RENAME

hud_andr3w282.ini OR hud_deathlink6.ini

TO

hud.ini

ONLY ONE OF THESE FILES MAY EXIST IN YOUR DATA FOLDER NAMED AS HUD.INI

Shaders.dll is NECESSARY to be copied. The other files are there incase some people have not yet updated to scripts 3.4.x

Place all other files (dda,tga,ini) into your data/ folder

Credits

The HUD includes map images which were released by Canadacdn on renegadeforums.com

The HUD includes fixes, textures, and colors which were released by DeathLink6.0 on renegadeforums.com

The HUD includes faded health and ammo notifications which were released by Saberhawk on renegadeforums.com

I give full credit to the above people for their work

What I actually did

The HUD includes changes by me to how loading of map settings are done.

Map settings are now found and loaded from within hud.ini with sections of [mapname]

This removes the need for individual <mapname>.ini files and allows it to be compatible with renguard.

The method of <mapname>.ini files are still compatible with this HUD.

If the section for [mapname] is not found, shaders.dll will attempt to load <mapname>.ini

If <mapname>.ini is not found, the default texture for the map is found in hud.ini as <<

ScrollingMapTexture= >>

Example Screenshots:

There are two hud.ini configurations in this release. Select which ever one you like more, or edit it yourself

Source Files are included

Extra note :

I just want to say thanks to anyone who has worked on the hud files, shaders.dll, scripts.dll or Renegade in general. Please read the credits as i do NOT want to be given credit for someone else's work. I just wrote the code that worked with renguard, organized everything, compiled etc.. The above names deserve thanks for the features they had worked on.

2 questions.

1. I noticed this when the overhead display was first released that the red ring that appears on the screen indicating you are taking damage and sometimes it indicates what side didnt appear. Does it appear with this hud?

2. You said the resolution is independent, does this mean it can support 800X600 easily or will editing hud.ini be necessary for it to fit?

I actually don't remember on the red-ring indicator your talking about .. maybe i never noticed :\

When its said to be "resolution" independent I mean the X/Y locations on the screen will be in the same alignment on any resolution. The textures/font themselves will not change size however .

So for example, in my screenshot i had it running at 1280x1024. If you bump it down to 800x600 .. the alignment will be all the same, however the textures themselves will appear larger and closer together. That's the best way I can explain it.

If you look at the gap between the radarmap, and the ammo count box ... the larger resolution you are at, the bigger the gap will be. The smaller the resolution, the less of a gap (distance) will exist between the two locations.

You are still using the d6hud_ext.dds file which is missing (dark) 4 pixels on the health icon. The health icon is a cross, and it has 4 darker pixels then the icon itself on the left side of the cross.

I fixed it myself (because it annoyed me a bit) with photoshop (and yes, I still got the .dds problem, but I used a DDS Converter)

Will be in the attachment, see below this post

Nice. I noticed one thing though:

If you are on a map where there is no overlay, such as Islands, you can't see beacon blips on the radar.

i also noticed that in ctf you don't see the flag on the radar, unless it's close. and when you get hit the red damage indicator does not appear all the time too

@andr3w282

You forgot to give credits to cAmpa. oO

He did the main fixes. tbh

Quote:

- Fixed a memleak in shaders.dll from scripts 3.44.
 - Fixed that crashbug when you enter a vehicle with the "weaponimage" function on
 - New maths for the radar, it uses now 100% of the map (normal in 3.44 scripts is the normal renegade circle hud)
 - Extra icons for beacons and you see always the position from your team beacons again. (like in normal renegade but this feature was not in scripts 3.44)
 - Colour notices, for low HP and low munition.
 - New info to see the current placed mines.
 - It doesn't need information from the strings.tdb anymore.

Heh guess I did. I mentioned deathlink because he is the one who released the hud/hud fixes but missed the fact cAmpa assisted it on him. Full credit to cAmpa for whatever work he did then. At least i attempted to give full credit to who i thought added to it and explain the minimal stuff that i did

And "mod abuser" LOLLOL, im admin not mod. I pay for that to ban idiots like you, so where is the abuse?

I hope the other server owner and the forum moderation will follow my example.

We both worked as a team on the HUD. I did mainly the graphics/hud.ini and cAmpa the code fixes/features. Here and there I helped and added some code things too.

So it is definitely not a only "DeathLink-HUD", it is a "cAmpa/DeathLink"-HUD.

I have an addon pack for this HUD.

It includes the following:

A Clear Chatbox

A high Definition Weapons Pack (A model pack making the default renegade weapons look better, in both third person and first person, should not be considered a cheat as they are the same weapons, just higher poly)

A chat History

Resurrection Credits Hider

Additional Maps

A Reticle
