updated the main page!
New modifications will be shown for easier acces

13-06-2009
Back on business

03-06-2009 :

The ww-gaming.com team is upgrading their board, this is the board where my downloadsection is. This is going to take a couple of days before its all updated.
So in those days you will not be able to reach my downloadsection.

But when my website is back there will be a couple of releases waiting for you

14-04-2009 :
All downloads from my old website are now back online on ww-gaming.com

Easier to reach my downloadsection is through this link:

www.renegademodels.tk

More to come soon!

31-03-2009

I have a different website now.
Brandon from ww-gaming.com let me upload my stuff on their download section.

Its a pretty cool section, its easier and faster to upload things and it has a better overview.

Also guests can now rate and comment on downloads.

Without Brandon I would probably haven't started uploading my stuff again, so as in return I would like to ask you to register on their forum to thank ww-gaming.com

You can reach my download section through :

<http://www.renegademodels.tk/>

or

<http://www.ww-gaming.com> (ninja edit by admin so the link works)

I like your site man! It's pretty cool!

Maybe you can host the GoldenEye mod when ever it's created ??????

I'll most likely start on it when ever I get back from m Medical class tonight; Fire Department Certifications are my top priority sense I plan to one day make it my career you know?

But yeahp; I'll start the GoldenEye mod tonight :D; hopefully we will get tremendous support for this mod, it will only be a Multiplayer mod though.

(I tried every Resolution over it).
Here is a Screenshot in my normal Resolution (1680x1050) for you

EDIT:

I noticed that some sections arent filled yet.
Let it me know, if you want to have a Mirror for your files.

2nd EDIT:

On my website you also have that problem. Didn't find a way to stretch the image yet so it places them side-by-side xD

<SCRIPT language="JavaScript">

 window.location="highres.html";
}
else
 window.location="lowres.html";

That supports the STRETCH function

Nice to see some CSS enthusiasts around here

CSS3 is being done in a modular way, so different parts can reach working draft stage before others. This is good so we don't have to wait as long.
The main thing we do have to wait a long time for it browsers to add support for it. IE7 is still the leading browser and they don't like to follow standards, although IE8 is supposed to make major improvements. IE6 is still the second most used browser at over 25% and we have to create so many stupid workarounds for it just to get it to display how most other modern browsers do.

I have no idea what you're referring to by "stretch function" but they do have a nice background-size which Opera, webkit and khtml based browsers (Safari, Chrome, Konqueror) have already implemented.

- o-background-size
- webkit-background-size
- khtml-background-size.

Listed in the order mentioned above.

I'm assuming FireFox 3.1 has -moz-background-size but I don't know for sure.

You may not be able to resize the backgrounds at this time, but you can change the sizes of your layers (the  element) with the CSS2 dimension properties. IE doesn't support the min or max properties though.

http://w3schools.com/css/css_dimension.asp

Have a look around that site, it's great for beginners.

Hey you could also use the SVG (Scaleable Vector Graphics) format.
With that format it stretches automatic, without seeing any pixels, like if u scale a normal picture up.
But currently I dont have a Clue how to add them to a HTML Site

I ment the function 'background-size: auto' <- stretches image to fit the screen

On behalf of WW-Gaming (now known as Aspiration Designs) I apologize for the inconvenience. We originally had planned on having the downloads section back up by Friday but due to a setback we were suppose to wait a week and a half longer. Fortunately, the setback is no longer an issue and we'll have the downloads section up and running tomorrow and hopefully all files will be back no later than Thursday.

I have updated the main design op my website.

Whenever a new file gets uploaded you will see it on the main page, so you won't have to search through the downloadsection for new stuff whenever you want to.

Simply click on the image of the specific modification and you will be transported to the downloadscreen
