No one gave him the feature, he made it himself. It's his own coding.

So continue on accusing me of stealing other peoples shit when it's completely false, when clearly you have been the worse for that.

I have either written all my code myself, or under the much appreciated assistance and input from a few renegade and n00bstories members. They know who they are.

I split this rather off topic part to the heated discussions subforum and closed the TT topic (as it seems solved).

My first google result on "irc overlay" gave me something similar to what you made, though I didn't install it and test if it works on Renegade. But I suppose you used the same principle? Nice coding work . I don't think I'd personally use it, it just gets in the way of gaming, the way you currently have it :-S. But I can see it being useful.

ROFL as if your still going on about how SK gave me the irc overlay/map overlay.

I can't wait till he shows up to this thread, insults my stuff (it's expected) as well as insults your ignorance.

*edit - Also SK is a programmer, not a scripter which I'm sure he'd bitch slap you for calling him that SK was the first one to do the map overlay, oh so long ago, and I give him full props and respect for the idea of it.

The implementation is my own code written in shaders.dll .. so fail more.

The reason is simple: if he releases the .dll, he needs to release the source because of the open source license.

Sorry I didn't get a chance to answer this because I've been laughing at Scrin here.

Basically I open up a socket, and send myself data through UDP to that socket and parse it all. Then on every frame draw, i draw out the data. So it's being rendered right into Renegade itself as apposed to being drawn ontop. I wrote a simple system which allows me to prefix the message I send with a number between 1 and 9. This number then translates to a color which I specified in hud.ini. The colors are your standard rgb settings as well as alpha, so you can specify the transparency on each individual messages. So for certain messages (like if my name is said) i can make it brighter and more visible then generic IRC bot spam. Inside mIRC i wrote a simple script to parse messages and send it to my loopback. Also customizable is how many lines of data to store + output to screen. When it reaches that limit i trim off the oldest line so you actually get that scrolling text effect also. So yeah the transparency of the text is fully customizable, not to mention with my key toggle class i can easily toggle it on/off while ingame if i decide it's in my way.

The whole idea is for people who don't run dual monitors, and don't run or don't want to run in windowed mode yet still have that ability to monitor irc. Plus i wanted to learn some more new shit which includes sockets that's kool.. but it would look better with a border of some sort.

I think the more important issue here is that your FPS is low, you can't possibly PRAWN with such a frame rate. It's not just done.

The original Map pictures came with a border etc but i find its less cluttered and looks better with so i edited the map files (The pack by deathlink6.0)

For example, this is a sample of the earlier stages when i was writing this:

Scrin, you are the last person who should be bitching about people not publically releasing things.
Until a few weeks ago, you wouldn't release a single byte of your work because of the exact same reason, "I don't want people stealing my work and claiming it as my own." You do the exact thing that he is talking about and what you didn't want people to do to you.

God, I'm 5 years younger than you and I act about 10 older. I guess maturity actually doesn't come with age.

Actually that is not what I am saying at all. I'm more then happy to release what I have including the source to SPECIFIC individuals.

The source code for this stuff can EASILY be manipulated. For example, the map overlay can be turned into a full radarhack if wanted with VERY little code changes. Theres some other stuff that can be done but I'm not going into detail into that.

If I was allowed to release the map overlay without releasing the source, I would. The irc thing works awesome, but i feel like it has not been perfected yet so I still consider it under developement.

Also incase your wondering, the n00bstories mods will back me up in my willingness to share with the right people.

Scrin is basically just being a huge whiney, raging bitch and pulling random lies out of his ass that doesn't even make sense.

Umm shitty cheats? The purpose of everything i've written is not to be cheats and have written it specifically to not show enemy information as i've clearly explained. For these reasons is why I can't release the source otherwise some more ignorant fucks like yourself WOULD make them into "pro" cheats. If I really wanted to write some "good" cheats I would have by now, so clearly that's not my objective.

Acting like a 12 year old? I would really like to see an example of this.

Guys how dare you all question a n00bstories staff member. It does nothing but get you ousted from their butthurt eliteist circlejerk of a community. Or you could just end up like ma1kel, banned for making the n00bstories admins upset.

tl;dr: Just don't question andr3w or you'll be banned by the renforums staff. Do not tell them that their work is questionable. That is just really unacceptable.

A reminder: n00bstories, BHS and Renforums staff have nothing to do with eachother.

If you actually are as logical as you say you are, null, you would read all of these posts and take notice I'm simply defending and shooting down all the nonsense scrin has thrown at me in which case Ma1kel decided to attempt to do the same thing. Yes. This is an example of what's known as inductive reasoning, or taking a specific example and drawing a broad conclusion from it.

For example, children with larger feet have known to be smarter. Your brand of logic would say "Ah-hah! The key to intelligence! We should take all our children and put them on foot-stretching racks immediately!", without paying heed for anything underlying factors which influences both variables (Like a child's age).

In our situation, the underlying factor that you're ignoring is ma1kel spamming like a fucking retard. Here are a few of his pearls of wisdom:

Ma1kel wrote on Sun, 26 April 2009 17:02twitter more like shitter

Even if Andrew is using his radar to cheat, and only disabled enemy teams for videos and screen shots. No one can tell him what to program or force him to release anything.

If he's caught cheating that's a different matter, and so far, the server owner at the server he plays. Which happens to be n00bstories, is ok with him using this mod. So, if you don't like him using it, you can just play elsewhere, or if you're the server owner go ahead and ban him. No one else really has much of say in this, although you are completely entitled to your opinion. Just don't expect anyone to care about it.

People have been saying "X will be the end of Renegade" for years now. The way I see it, this can only improve teamplay. In combination with TeamSpeak or some similar communication tool, this would make coordination much easier.

sure the way it is shown here, it can improve renegade a lot. teamplay, and...how often did i ask myself on glacier "where to fuck i am and where are the others?"...

but imagine the code would become public and through it a hax buildt, which shows the oponents too???

gameplay, e.g. trying to sneak in, would become senseless. it would be more then a radar hack, because its so detailed.

Radar hacks already exist.

Dover, Andrew kindly sent me the source code to the map over-view feature.

With extemely little effort you could turn the map over-view thing into sommething horrible, I am one of the least knowledgable coders on this forum, and I could quite easily make r g h look like an amatuers attempt within an evening, less infact.

A radar hack is the least of concerns. Infact that would be so easy with this code that all you would have to do is delete lines of code (lines written deliberatly to stop it functioning as a radar hack), you wouldn't even really need any knowledge for that. Just delete some lines and compile it.

Seriously, a release of this would be a bad idea. I'm not kidding.

I don't doubt it, and I'm not pushing for andr3w to release this publically, at least as an standalone mod. All I'm saying is this feature is bitching, it has the potential to expand teamplay (Something Renegade can't get enough of). I'd like to see this feature implemented into the Core of Renegade, perhaps through a TT-style patch. Imagine the positive effects on the game it could have, especially if combined with a Counter-Strike style built-in VoIP communication system.

^^ This is what i've been saying all along towards the map overlay and currently the irc relay.

I would love to release the map overlay to renforums however because of the agreement I simply won't. So if TT could include this source or their own code it would be a win win all around. I've sent Saberhawk the code previously and I know without a fact he has more then enough skill and knowledge to make his own (and no doubt more improved) I think it would just be whether TT would be willing to include it, and whether the renegade community would accept it.

The IRC Relay/Overlay is still a work in progress, however I don't think it would be useful globally for all renegade players.. just moderators and admins.

Even if TT doesn't include it for whatever reason, that's no reason to give up. I imagine that once TT is released other similar patches will follow...eventually. I'm hoping it makes it, but I'm absolutely confident that so long as Renegade survives, this feature or something like it will make it's way eventually.

Luckily ive written the code encapsulated in its own class so hopefully whatever changes saberhawk has done to shaders still will allow me to write/use my own shit with a few tweaks.
