I hope it'll be better than Black-ops. Imo, if they did what Treyarch did (listen to the online community and fix what the competitive gamer and add what the competitive gamer wanted) it would be a good game. But, I know that isn't going to happen. Therefore, prepare for some noob shit like always..

Still, probably going to be a good game.

It's like they somehow trick you into forgetting what happened with the last game. No matter how much people piss and moan about how shit the latest Call of Duty is, they say OMG NEW COD then rinse and repeat.

You guys are a bunch of fags.

Seriously, I don't understand how so many people buy COD over BF. I suppose BF is pretty neutered on consoles though.

and LOL the MW3 trailer is a rip off of some of the BF3 trailers. The only difference is that BF3 looks amazing and COD looks like the same reskinned 3 year old shit.

much better advertisement...

to be honest the graphics look absolutly sick, and with the cock up made with black ops people will buy this.

I always find that battlefield seem to do what call of duty did already.

So battlefield 3 will be a tiny bit better than modern warefare 2...

then modern warefare 3 will come along and be loads better than battlefield 3.

Not sure if that's true. Battlefield 1942 came out a year before the first Call of Duty, and most of the BF games since then have been an improvement on the original concept. Battlefield 2 for example came out 2 years before Modern Warfare 1, so if anything, CoD's recent "modern" games might be following Battlefield 2's popularity.

But whether or not one "copied" the other, the two games are very different. Battlefield has things like transport vehicles, tanks, helicopters, a Commander, artillery strikes, and sometimes jets. I personally prefer that larger scale battle over MW2 and Black Ops' infantry frag fest. I personally think BF3 will kick the crap out of the next Call of Duty game, but we'll see I guess. There's still a lot left to see for both games.

What Fobby said is right. There might be a few copies of each other in small aspects, but typically they are two different gameplay styles for an FPS. Judging by what has been shown so far, MW3 looks like the same reskinned frag game again. Add some new maps, guns and maybe a mode or two and call it a day. BF3 is a complete remake with a brand new engine (which shits all over the COD engine, hell it even makes the current bc2 frosbite engine look crappy) and an environment that is physically destructible. If you look at the two trailers, you'll see that almost everything that happens in BF3 is not cinematic effects, but rather their engine showing what it can do. COD on the other hand is mostly SP cinematic effects which mean fuck all.

To say that one game is better than the other at any point in the past or future is stupid. It boils down to a matter of preference and just that. The two gameplay styles are far enough apart that I don't find they overlap too much. The only main difference I see is that Battlefield progresses forward with every game and it shows in the improving quality of games. For example in bc2 spawnkilling (other than squad spawning) is nearly done away with. Nade spamming is possible, but quite restricted and noobtubes aren't overpowered. IMO Cod really hasn't changed much in a while and isn't worth the $60 annual cost because the older games aren't that different and look just as good.
