Jelly Renegade is hosting a weekend event at the end of January, with organized games being played on Saturday the 30th. Anyone should feel free to sign up and participate, or can just post on here letting me know if you're interested. We did a similar event last year, picking two captains and having them draft teams from the players who were present. Anyone that ever saw how fun and different organized Renegade can be should definitely hop in and partake in this event because it's a cool nod () to the past and something that doesn't really happen anymore.

If you're interested, sign up in the thread below or just post on here / PM me letting me know - hope to see you guys and girls there.

There have been a lot of fixes and changes to it, it SHOULD handle better now even if the sfps is lower (I THINK).

I can PM you the map later.

It was a standard RenForums response - you should have expected it by now

That time is approximately correct

So this morning I realized why I was being bugged by the feeling I had forgotten something yesterday evening...
My apologies for totally forgetting about this. I hope everyone has had a grand time and I'll be sure to check the recordings to see what I missed.
