First thing I would consider is if you have installed anything recently? Do you have a virus? Or have you changed a setting or updated a driver?

After you rule out anything software issues, then I would check the hardware...

Well if it started after you got a new vid card, it has something to do with the vid card, have you updated to the latest drivers?

Consult the maker of the Vid card

Thats all I can suggest, after all, they made the damn thing lol
