But Lynne has cancer again and may not live. Some of you may not know her but she happens to be my girlfriend and we've been together for a while now.

I don't know what else to say except that I'm hoping she'll pull through and be able to come down here in June to move in with me. Any sort of good will sentiment would be great.

For our sake, if you don't care or if you don't believe it... Just shut the fuck up and vent your frustration on something else.

Grrr, darn cancer!

I hope she gets better.

(Atleast for our sakes)

My grandpa who was currently 62 at the time had cancer some near the kidney. The good new was that they could remove it, thankfully.

I seriously hope they can find a cure for Cancer.

My grandfathers girlfriend died of cancer last year, it's so sad for a loved one to die of cancer, the suffering, pain, saddnes, ETC. My grandfather really cared for her too, he got her out of an abbusive relation ship and she was about ten years younger then him, it seemed like they were souls mates, but then we found our she had cancer, and it was just so sad that she was dieing so slowly, and painfully. My grandfather even cried for once in his life time (I'm not joking) She died in Oklahoma, and I live in Ct, so we couldn't go down there.

Well, before I paste this e-mail from Melissa (Lynne's sister), I just want to thank everyone for their kind words and support.

I just checked my e-mail and saw a message from Melissa Stevenson, so a feeling of dread came over me... I thought she had died in the hospital after the surgery. According to her, she's doing just fine now...

QUOTE

I don't really know you, but Lynne asked me to send you something. She told me to get your email off of <http://aircraftkiller.blogspot.com>. I hope this is the right email. She told me to go on IRC if I wanted or even aim. Little does she know, I have no clue what "aim" is and I don't know where to connect with IRC. She wrote something for you.. And asked me to let you know how things were going. She told me this last night. She is done with the surgery. She went in early this morning. Shes still there right now. She is alive. Don't worry, she didn't die or anything. I had to come back home to watch my younger brother Will. So if you wanted to talk or needed any assurance I'll be around.

This is what she said (to me) last night:

Private, doesn't need to be said here

That was it. Upon reading this, you are probably thinking something bad happened. She's alive and concious. The surgery went well, but she will be there for a while. I'm not sure how long. Probably a few days. I'm sure it will be ok.

You must be the one she writes about. She keeps a journal hidden in her room. Being myself, I went ahead and read it. She hasn't been this happy in a long time. I don't know what you said or did, but thank you. If you have anything you want her to know just let me know, and I can pass it on. I'm going to see her tomorrow morning.

~Melissa

I'm nearly in tears right now from being very happy... I wanted to let everyone know that she's doing okay. I'm sure that God heard us all and made sure she'd come back to us.

Thank you all... thank you so much...

ACK:

I, too, have a very close girlfriend of mine that has been fighting cancer for some time. I have also lost a family member to it as well. It is a rough thing to go through. Hopefully the support from your (her) friends here will ease any pain.

Let me know if you need anything.
